² The table was created solely on the basis of replies provided by the EU Member States. Therefore the contents of this column reflects only the provided information – e.g. if there has been expressly mentioned, that certain EU Member State has established National Rapporteur or Equivalent Mechanism, the “yes” answer was filed up. In some replies certain national body was mentioned as e. g. answer for questions 1-3 without explicitly mentioning, that the body was appointed officially to perform a role of National Rapporteur or Equivalent Mechanism. These bodies in some of the EU Member States perform monitoring, reporting or similar relevant functions on the national level. These information has been considered by the authors very important for the possibility of the exchange of the information on trafficking in human beings on the EU level, that contact points and other relevant information on these bodies was mentioned in the table as well without any further classification or assessment.

⁶ „At the moment, it is not foreseen to appoint a National Rapporteur (as it was established e.g. in the Netherlands) in Austria.”

⁹ "Germany has no National Rapporteur according to the description given in The Hague Declaration of February 24th, 1997. However, the mechanisms ensuring data collection and coordination of efforts are well established in Germany."

¹¹ "The Ministry of the Interior is a responsible institution for coordination of the implementation process of the State Programme and prepares an informative report "On the implementation of the State Programme for Prevention of Trafficking in Human Beings 2004-2008" each year and submits to the Cabinet of Ministers. This model of cooperation and coordination is an alternative mechanism to the National Rapporteur. The establishment of National Rapporteur as a separate institution is not a current priority."
